We are getting a lot of feedback from NJ right now. The Fusion Center continues to share under first refusal and the JTTF is getting SARs. When the SAR is vetted and sent out to the Minnesota locations, this is a HQ JTTF FBI issue.

Does this mean that once we go to EG only, MNN will drop out?

We anticipate that all other EGs have tech capacity to share and we are monitoring which ones are not pushing yet. There is a "closed" meeting on this.

Sorry, [REDACTED]

1. I met with our legal advisor late today and we have come to an agreement on the final agreement. I am planning on sending [REDACTED] to get his review to make sure that we do not lose too much from the original draft. If it looks good, I will be bringing it with me to the County Sheriff's Office for their endorsement and signature.
2. We had our governing board meeting and as I suspected we will not be participating. We will continue to share SAR reporting tied to terrorism directly with our Minneapolis FBI office and the JTTF and will input [REDACTED] on the NSI. We will also input in federal data systems of Minnesota law enforcement data as illustrated in [REDACTED] with participation in NDEX and this is not an appropriate time to go beyond our original promise for NSI participation.

I think [REDACTED] are continuing to promote the Line Officer Training and we anticipate further additions to our stats this month. Hope that you have a good holiday too. If you have any questions, [REDACTED]

Hi [REDACTED]

Hope you survived the holidays.

The [REDACTED] had better [REDACTED] you an eGuardian push issue. The latest [REDACTED] tracking for your fusion center are:

1. Status of [REDACTED]
2. eGuardian push issue:

December 20, 2011 - we are not in a [REDACTED] our fusion center and is a potential change in how we would the concept to both our governing board and our [REDACTED] privacy committee. I have a governor's board meeting this afternoon where one of the items on the agenda is this issue. I am not at all convinced that we will be participating in this initiative. I will know more after today's meeting.

For NSI Team Dashboard stats, always go to www.nsi.com to load SAR's to the shared server and to encourage the viewing of the Line Officer Video and report training stats through the NSI website at <http://www.nsi.com>

Let me know

Thank you
